

Instituții europene. Istoric și evoluție (I)

Title: European Institutions. History and evolution

Abstract: The European Constitution represents one of the most complex projects from the XX century and the historical evolution, from the first European communities to the European Union nowadays has followed an ascending line. It can be alleged that this institutional creation is a successful one in what international affairs and European economy are concerned. In our approach we referred not only to the intergovernmental aspect but also to the evolution of the European institutions and we considered in essence the premises and the evolution of the integration process. Our researches emphasize the complexity of political, judicial and economical relations established between the member states and the commonwealth institutions. In conclusion, the EU institutions embody the result of a long-lasting process of political, economical and judicial transformations and last but not least the result of the European policy strong will.
